

Ancient Egypt

MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY
Write a postcard from the site of a great Egyptian archaeological dig telling of the treasures you have found.	Why do you think Ancient Egypt has inspired so much modern art and culture?	What could modern-day world leaders learn about propaganda from the Egyptian king, Ramses II.	Evaluate evidence that the famous boy king of ancient Egypt, Tutankhamen, was murdered.	Determine the level of mathematical understanding the ancient Egyptians would have needed to build the pyramids.
Tell what is so special about the Rosetta Stone.	Explain the significance of drought in ancient Egypt. What effect would it have on politics, religion and warfare?	Create a front page headline and article for a fictional ancient Egyptian newspaper about the scandal of the robbing of royal tombs.	Write everything you know about the famous Egyptian queen, Cleopatra. Which of your statements can be backed up by archaeological or scientific evidence?	Evaluate the success of the ancient Egyptian method of paying their taxes in goods or services. Would this method work in modern-day Australia?
Write a one-page story about the fictional scenario of the River Nile drying up in the Archaic period of ancient Egypt.	Write a poem about the life of Ramesses I and his son, Seti I.	Create and label a bar chart to depicts the highs and lows of the great Egyptian dynasties.	Name all the articles that would be used to symbolise an Egyptian king's power.	Study the Hermopolis creation myth and identify any scientific truth behind it.
List as many books or movies that you can think of that have been inspired by Ancient Egypt.	Can you think of an ancient Egyptian mystery that has not been revealed by modern science or archeology.	Study a photo of the famous bust of the Egyptian queen, Nefertiti. How has the adornment of queens changed throughout the ages?	Define the word 'sarcophagus'.	Produce a series of drawings that represent the journey the ancient Egyptians believed a person's spirit took in the afterlife.