WILLETTON SHS YEAR 10 HEALTH EDUCATION ASSESSMENT TASK 1 (15%) RELATIONSHIPS TEST

1. Outline two types of abuse demonstrated in this advertisement and use examples from the video to support your answer. (4 marks)

1 mark each for outlining what the types of abuse are.

1 mark each for using examples from the commercial to support each answer.

Emotional abuse – When someone repeatedly tries to make another person feel bad or doubt themselves. Can have a big impact on someone's mental health and well-being, and confidence.

- When the boy trips over and his dad tells him to man up, he's playing like a girl.
- When the girl receives a threatening message from her boyfriend accusing her of lying and having been with someone else. She brushes it off by saying that he does it all the time, and "he just misses me."

Physical abuse – when a person uses physical force against another person. Includes physical force against a person's body, or belongings.

- When the child continually throws the ball at the girl, and she asks him to stop.
- The bloke abusing his girlfriend by yelling at her, making her feel threatened, she then asks him to stop, and he then throws something at her.

Verbal abuse – the perpetrator consistently makes statements that negatively label a person. Can include cold statements, name calling, swearing, public humiliation etc.

- The bloke abusing his girlfriend by yelling at her, making her feel threatened, she then asks him to stop, and he then throws something at her.

2. Outline one major Australian cultural attitude which is depicted in this advertisement. (2 marks)

1 mark for identifying what the cultural attitude is.

1 mark for relating it into the advertisement.

- Accepting or dismissing acts of violence or abuse with the reasoning of "he likes her."
- Its 'uncool' to call out your mates when they are degrading women/or another person.
- Psychological abuse of young women is normalised when actions are associated with the phrase "like a girl."
- The idea that men aren't 'men' if they aren't tough or good at sport – "man up, you're playing like a girl."
- Accepting that its ok to be threatened and emotionally abused because "they love me/miss me."

3. Describe two techniques used in this advertisement to target/change attitudes. (4 marks)

1 mark each for listing what technique is used in the advertisement.

1 mark each for describing the target/change of attitudes.

- Use of children adds shock value/demonstrates how early changes to cultural attitudes needs to occur – demonstrates the cycle of abuse.
- Facial expressions of those in the background of situations demonstrate many people understand something is wrong, however, do not stand up against abuse – stimulates frustration at those who do not speak up (could persuade someone to speak up in their lives)
- Use of all age groups in ad – shows abuse can occur at any stage of someone's life.
- Use of lighting – shadow cast over the face of the person who is not speaking up against the abuse.
- The 'unmute' symbol and change of lighting at the end when it shows the parents telling the young boy off. Shows parents supporting each other in telling the young boy not to do that.
- Use of the 'unmuting' metaphor and language – "we all have the power to end violence. If you see disrespect, unmute yourself." The use of 'we' is inclusive of everyone.

4. Outline one social skill/strategy which a young person could adopt to change cultural norms around domestic violence/abuse. (2 marks)

1 mark for identifying a social skill/strategy.

1 mark for providing detail around the change of cultural related to domestic violence.

- Challenge friends and speak up when they make sexist/misogynistic remarks.
- Limit time spent on consuming content that degrades women.
- Avoid making jokes that stereotype women as a 'lesser' person.

5. What is a relationship? Give an example. (2 marks)

1 mark for what is a relationship.

1 mark for an example.

- The way in which 2 or more people or groups regard and behave towards each other.
- The state of 'connection' between people.
- Examples: mum, dad, brother, sister, teacher, coach etc.

6. List a type of relationship in the space below and describe one right and one responsibility for each (do not repeat any answers). (4 marks)

No mark for listing the relationship type, marks only allocated for the description of the right and responsibility of each.

1 mark per example for listing with minimal description and/or inaccurate.

2 marks per example for accurately describing both a right and responsibility.

- Rights – something you are entitled to, what everyone deserves.
- Responsibilities – something that you are obliged to do or are accountable for.

7. Using an example, discuss how a relationship between 2 people could change over time. (2 marks)

1 mark if only list e.g., divorce or married.

2 marks for discussing how that change could occur.

- Relationships could change over time through the statuses of the relationship. For example, a couple could get married, divorce or break-up.
- A relationship could change over time as people grow older, life circumstances change, and priorities change. What we look for in relationships may differ as our lives develop and different relationships may provide us with different things.

8. List 4 qualities of a healthy relationship. (2 marks)

1/2 mark per quality. No detail required, only listing.

- Respect, honesty, trust, communication, kindness, considerate etc.

9. Using the ethical framework, what 4 things should you remember when making decisions in a relationship so that everyone involved is safe? Give a brief explanation of each (4 marks).

½ mark for only listing

½ mark if listed a correct answer but explanation is poor / inaccurate

1 mark per correct answer if thing to remember and explanation are accurate.

1. Taking care of me: Is this what I really want to do? Am I safe emotionally and physically? Is the other person treating me with respect and concern?
2. Taking care of you: How does what I want affect the other person? How do I know? I've got to check if they are OK with the decision.
3. Having an equal say: Do we have equal power, or is one person getting their way most of the time? When it comes to sex, a person owns their body and has the right to control who has pleasure from it.
4. Learning as we go: What would have made the situation better? What am I doing? What am I not doing? What can I learn from this?

10. Discuss and provide examples of 4 types of abuse (e.g., Dowry abuse – where the gifting for a bride may be abused, or cause conflict between families, resulting in harassment of the bride) – you cannot use Dowry abuse as an example. (8 marks)

The dowry example in this question is an example for the students to see how the answer can be laid out.

1/2 mark for just listing with no explanation.

1 mark for just listing and inaccurate description.

2 marks for listing and an accurate description.

The examples listed in the table below were explicitly mentioned during the P.P. content.

Physical	- Physical abuse happens when a person uses physical force against another person. - Physical abuse can start slowly and inconspicuously, for example with throwing an object or a slap, and get more intense or worse over time. - A person can experience many different types of physical abuse such as shaking, slapping, pushing, punching or scratching, kicking, spitting or biting, trying to strangle or choke, using weapons, driving dangerously, destroying property and throwing things, abuse of children or pets, locking someone out of their house or in the house, sleep and food deprivation, forced feeding, physical restraint e.g. pinning against the wall or bed.
Financial	- Financial abuse can be subtle, with a perpetrator gradually taking control over bank accounts and financial transactions. - Financial abuse can also be obvious, violent, and threatening. For example, someone may forbid their partner from working or spending their wages. - Financial abuse includes someone taking complete control of finances and money, restricting access to bank accounts, providing an inadequate allowance, and monitoring what their partner spends money on, forbidding a partner to work, taking a partner's pay and not allowing them to access it, preventing them from getting to work by taking their keys or car, identity theft to secure credit, using their credit card without their permission, refusing to work or contribute to household expenses.
Emotional	- Emotional abuse does not leave physical scars, but it can have a big impact on a person's mental health and wellbeing. Someone experiencing emotional abuse can feel anxious, depressed and even suicidal. - Perpetrators of emotional abuse use it to take away a person's independence, confidence, and self-esteem. This helps the perpetrator maintain power and control in the relationship. Physically abusive relationships often include aspects of emotional abuse. - The signs of emotional abuse can be difficult to identify, especially because it is non-physical. Examples include blaming a partner for all the problems in a relationship, constantly comparing them with others to undermine their self-esteem and self-worth, intentionally embarrassing them in public, name calling, yelling, insulting, or swearing at them, telling them what to wear, preventing them from seeing their friends and family, stalking, threatening suicide.
Verbal	- Verbal abuse is a key feature of emotionally abusive relationships. The perpetrator consistently makes statements that negatively label a person. - This has a serious impact on the self-esteem and confidence of the person experiencing the verbal abuse. - Examples include angry yelling, cold statements designed to humiliate a person, name-calling, continuous criticism, swearing and humiliation in public or in private, attacks on someone's intelligence, body, or parenting yelling.
Sexual	- Sexual abuse is any form of forced or unwanted sexual activity. The perpetrator of sexual abuse may use physical force, make threats, or take advantage of a person unable to give consent. - Sexual abuse mainly happens between people who know each other and can occur in the context of domestic violence. - Sexual abuse has impacts on a person's physical and emotional health. It can lead to long-term mental health issues, including anxiety and post-traumatic stress disorder. - Sexual abuse includes rape, deliberately causing pain during sex, assaulting the genitals, forced sex without protection against pregnancy or sexually transmitted infections (STIs).
Students had further information available in their books on social abuse, stalking, spiritual and image-based abuse. These examples are also acceptable answers and outlined below:

Social	• Perpetrators of social abuse prevent a person from spending time with family and friends and participating in social activities. By isolating them from their support networks, the perpetrator is attempting to assert power and control. • Without a network of friends and family for support, a person can find it very difficult to leave an abusive relationship. • Social abuse can include monitoring someone's phone calls and emails, deciding which friends and family members your partner can talk to and spend time with continuously criticising your partner's friends and family.
Stalking	• Stalking happens when a person intentionally and persistently pursues someone against their will. The stalker does this to control, intimidate and create fear in the person they are stalking. The person being stalked may feel like they are in danger. • Stalking limits, a person's freedom and makes them feel they have lost control over their lives. Some people who have been stalked are forced to change their lives, including by moving house and changing jobs. • Anyone can be a victim of stalking. Perpetrators include current or former partners, relatives, and strangers. In Australia, stalking is a crime. • Stalking involves a pattern of strange or suspicious incidents. • To control, intimidate and create fear in a person, a stalker may make repeated phone calls, send numerous text messages, loiter outside or near a person's home or work.
Spiritual	• Spiritual abuse is the denial or use of spiritual or religious beliefs and practices to control and dominate a person. Spiritual abuse can impact on a someone's self-esteem and confidence, make them feel guilty, damage their spiritual experiences, and isolate them. • Spiritual abuse can happen as part of domestic violence and alongside other types of abuse, for example physical abuse, emotional abuse, financial abuse, and sexual abuse. • Spiritual abuse includes preventing someone from practicing their religion, misusing spiritual or religious beliefs and practices to justify other types of abuse and violence.
Image-based	• Image-based abuse is when someone shares, or threatens to share, intimate photos without the consent of the person in the photo. • Image-based abuse includes photos or videos of a nude person, a person whose breasts or genitals are visible, a person engaged in a sex act, a person showering or bathing, 'up-skirting' and 'down-blousing' (taking photos up someone's skirt or down their top), a person's face digitally added to a pornographic or sexualised image.
