Question 13

Summarise the visitors' impressions of life in France and give details of those traditions and customs that seem quite strange to some of them. Answer in ENGLISH [10 marks]

Criteria – Response / Comprehension of text	Marks
Demonstrates comprehensive understanding of the relevant segments from the text. Identifies and communicates all relevant information in detail: • The French lack spontaneity, they are formal. When I want to visit a friend, I need to take out my diary and look for a day to make an appointment, which is sometimes even two weeks later! • Here, most things work efficiently, when you post a letter, you can be sure it arrives – and it arrives quickly! The social support system is good: as a student I have the right to receive a living allowance. • It was strange for me to hear people talk about the rain, beautiful weather and the exact temperature! French people can tell you the exact temperature of the sea water! And everyone has a thermometer in de window! • Dogs are everywhere and they are accepted everywhere, even in restaurants. There's lots of dog poo in the streets. Watch your step, that's one of the first things I learnt in France! • It's a bit difficult to know how to embrace (kiss people on the cheek), it's four, sometimes two, seldom three, sometimes nothing. You need time to work it out.	10

Engages with limited content. Extracts and communicates information, which is culturally inaccurate and lacks essential details.	4
