

- ☐ According to legend, Minos was a mighty king and a great warrior, rumoured to be a son of the Greek god Zeus and the mortal woman Europa.
- ☐ He had a wife, Pasiphae, and three children: Androgeus, Ariadne and Phaedra. Pasiphae was the mother of the Minotaur.
- ☐ His splendid labyrinth palace at Knossos was built for him by the great genius Daedalus. He was a strong character, but he was also very harsh, and not well liked. As the ruler of one of the most powerful nations of the ancient world, he was greatly feared and respected by all the neighbouring kingdoms.
- ☐ Minos obtained the Cretan throne by the aid of the Greek god Posiedon , and from Knossos, he gained control over the Aegean islands, colonizing many of them and ridding the sea of pirates.
- ☐ Minos became the tyrannical exactor of the tribute of children to feed the Minotaur.
- ☐ Minos as a powerful, just ruler, very closely associated with religion and ritual. In light of excavations in Crete, many scholars consider that Minos was a royal or dynastic title for the priestly rulers of Bronze Age, or Minoan, Knossos.
