

Self: Personality

1. [5 marks]

(2013:S2:8b,c)

- (a) Describe two key ideas that are the basis of humanistic theories of personality. [2]

One: _____

Two: _____

- (b) List three of the five levels in Maslow's hierarchy of needs. [3]

One: _____

Two: _____

Three: _____

2. [9 marks]

(2014:S3:6a-b,cii-e)

- (a) Define 'personality'. [2]

- (b) Psychologists do not agree on whether personality is the result of genetics or environment or both. Outline what determines personality according to each of the following theories:

- (i) trait theory [1]

(ii) humanistic theory

[1]

(iii) psychodynamic theory.

[1]

- (c) At age six, Anna has many friends and is very confident in speaking with adults. At age 17, Anna is the captain of her school debating team and a member of the student council.

Explain how trait theory would account for the consistency of Anna's personality over time. [1]

- (d) At age 23, Anna gets her first full-time job in a large company. At work, Anna eats her lunch at her desk rather than going out to lunch with her colleagues. However, on the weekends, she enjoys going out to lunch with her friends.

Explain, with reference to personality theory, why Anna's behaviour is not consistent across these situations. [1]

- (e) Outline two limitations of trait theories of personality. [2]

3. [8 marks]

- (a) Describe the origins of personality according to Rogers' humanistic theory. [2]

- (b) Outline one limitation that is specific to the humanistic theory of personality. [1]

- (c) Joe and his colleagues have learned that the company for which they work is going to make a number of staff members redundant. Joe is worried that he might lose his job and begins to behave differently around his co-workers. He no longer helps his colleagues, prefers to work on his own and has become competitive in his work. Refer to Maslow's hierarchy of needs to explain Joe's behaviour. [3]

- (d) Outline two contributions trait theory has made to our understanding of personality. [2]

One:

Two:

4. [16 marks]

- (a) Name three traits from McCrae and Costa's personality theory. For each, list one characteristic that a person who is high in that trait might have. [6]

Trait one: _____

Characteristic: _____

Trait two: _____

Characteristic: _____

Trait three: _____

Characteristic: _____

- (b) (i) Outline Mischel's criticism of trait theories of personality. [2]

- (ii) Explain the 'cognitive' part of Mischel's social cognitive theory of personality. [2]

- (c) The school principal requested a Year 12 student to present a talk to Year 7 students on study tips for high school. Raphael volunteered to do the talk. Describe how each of the following theories of personality would explain why Raphael volunteered. [2]

- (i) trait theory

(ii) Rogers' humanistic theory

[2]

(iii) Bandura's social cognitive theory

[2]

5. [10 marks]

(2017:ATAR:4)

Maurice is a very shy person who prefers to spend time by himself doing familiar activities. He likes to do things his own way and feels anxious if he has to do something new or meet new people.

(a) According to McCrae and Costa's trait theory:

(i) identify one trait that Maurice would be high on.

[1]

(ii) identify one trait that Maurice would be low on.

[1]

(b) State two limitations of trait theories of personality.

[2]

One: _____

Two: _____

(c) (i) Define 'self-actualisation' in Rogers' humanistic theory of personality.

[1]

- (ii) Identify two characteristics of relationships with others that Rogers believed was necessary for a person to be able to achieve self-actualisation. [2]

One: _____

Two: _____

- (d) (i) State one contribution of Rogers' humanistic theory of personality. [1]

- (ii) State one limitation of Rogers' humanistic theory of personality. [1]

- (e) State one contribution of Mischel's social cognitive theory of personality. [1]

6. [19 marks]

(2019:ATAR:5)

- (a) Define the term 'personality'. [1]

There are many different theories of personality.

- (b) Identify two key concepts of the trait theories of personality. [2]

One: _____

Two: _____

- (c) List two similarities between the humanistic personality theories developed by Rogers and Maslow. [2]

One: _____

Two: _____

- (d) Name the personality theory type proposed by both Mischel and Bandura. [1]

- (e) Outline the two overarching ideas of the personality theory type proposed by Mischel and Bandura. [2]

One: _____

Two: _____

Bandura coined the term 'self-efficacy' when developing his personality theory.

- (f) Explain this term within the context of Bandura's theory. [3]

- (g) Explain the concept of 'personality signatures' in Mischel's personality theory. [2]

Mischel's theory was based on the idea that an individual's personality relied on five person/individual variables.

(h) Name and describe three of these variables.

[6]

One: _____

Two: _____

Three: _____
