

Cells, tissues, organs and systems

Student: Class:

Systems serving cells

1. (a) Complete the following table. The first example has been completed for you.

Organ	System
Kidney	Excretory
Heart
	Endocrine
Lungs
	Nervous

- (b) True or false:

- (i) Tissue is composed of one type of cell
- (ii) Organs are composed of one type of tissue
- (iii) The kidney is an organ of the excretory system
- (iv) Blood contains more than one type of cell

Literacy exercise

2. Write each of the sentences below in the passive voice. The first one has been done for you.

1A. Skin protects the outer body from germs and injury.

1B. The outer body is protected from germs and injury by the skin.

2A. Xylem tissue transports minerals and water from the roots to the rest of the plant.

2B. Minerals and water are

3A. The root system anchors a plant in the ground.

3B. A plant is

4A. Smooth muscle cells make up the walls of blood vessels and organs.

4B. The walls of

5A. Large organisms survive only because their many cells are organised into tissues.

5B. The many cells of