

appoints

The President

Elected every seven years.

The Chancellor

Appointed from the Reichstag by the President. Had to be supported by a majority of the Reichstag.

The Reichstag

Proportional representation: parties got the same proportion of seats as their proportion of votes.

makes laws

elect

elect

The German people

All adults can vote; all have equal rights.

Article 48

Said in an emergency he could make laws without going first to the Reichstag.

The states kept their own governments, but with reduced powers.
National laws could overrule state laws.